Exploring A New World

As August came to an end, Grant County High School Students found themselves putting away their suntan lotion and beach towels as another fun-filled summer came to a close. When the doors opened on August 31, two weeks later than originally scheduled, students found themselves exploring a new world. For those who had spent most of their vacation here anyway for band, basketball and other purposes the changes were nothing new, but for the others new elements of construction, changed rules and many other various changes were definitely evident. Senior Teri Taylor commented, "Everything has changed so much since my freshman year. I never know what to expect when we come back from summer vacation. It will be great once they get it finished. The future students of Grant County High certainly are lucky. I just wish I would have been able to experience more of it before graduating."

The most prominent of the improvements was the dusty, unfinished construction of a well-welcomed softball field, baseball field and soccer field/track. Accompanying the upgrading of (continued on Page 5)

Revisions

(Continued from Page 4) the sports facilities was a brand new, just finished agriculture building that included a built in garage and fenced in parking lot, as well as spacious indoor learning facilities. When asked how he felt about the new agriculture building and what he liked best about it , Mr. Bill Courts' reply was, " It is great! What I like the best about it is the mechanic facilities in it. For the past few years it has been rather hard to run an ag. program with no garage. The new building has made my job, and the students' learning process so much easier and more thorough."

Another change at GCHS this year was a revised dress code that, finally, included a clause about shorts. Although past years have restricted students from wearing anything classified as shorts, which are stated as anything even with or above the knee, there was nothing that could stop students from wearing skirts, that is MINI-skirts. The new clause stated that students were allowed to wear shorts as long as they came no higher than three inches above (Continued on Page 6)

Changes — Contributing To Development

(Continued from Page 5) the knee. It also stated that mini-skirts had to be long enough to come no less than three inches above the knee. Although this sometimes caused mixed, clashing emotions between students and staff, and many students did have to take a drive home during the middle of the day to put on something "decent", it was a great success. While meandering around the halls in a bright pair of jams, Sr. Cary Depew was stopped and asked for his idea on this change. He answered, "It's the best idea they've had yet. Being limited to so many things can often make teenagers feel as if they're being treated like elementary students. Having the freedom to wear what we want to, within reasonable limits, makes us feel more like adults. That's an important role in the development from children to adults, and it's something schools should pay more attention to as well as academic development. I feel it's helping many people. Besides, it's also much more comfortable and makes a long, eight hour day more tolerable." When asked for his opinion to it, Mr. Brill stated, "I think the whole concept of students being able to wear shorts is good. I like it. (Continued on Page 7)

Lunging Forward

(Continued from Page 6) Most students have seemed to abide by the rules, and I hope it remains that way so we can keep this."

Not only were there great improvement changes at school, but the community overall had been in the process of "BOOMING" over the summer. For those associated with Grant County High School, the greatest of this growth was the new Convienient Store located at the end of school road. Not only did it provide somewhere to run to quickly before after school practice, but it also provided a great hang out place for many students after practice, or just after school. It was also helpful to those students who forgot they needed gas until the last minute. With so many renovations in the way of a student's life, the contrast from long, lazy summer days to long, busy school days was much easier for those at Grant County High as the school year of '88 lunged forward with a "special delivery" of a "first class" great start. — Shelley Wheelington, Editor

Special Opportunity

Escaping the World of Academics

With the monotony of academics on everyone's back, they must find some source of escape. Through these student life activities, GCHS students escape the boredom of being a teenager with growing pains and create for themselves a "first class" social life. Sr Tricia Fornash commented, "We students couldn't survive if we weren't allowed something for fun. Ballgames, McDonald's and the Mall give us our serenity. They make a world centered around enslaving yourself in bookwork bearable by presenting us with pleasure. Without the privilage of spending Tuesday, Friday and Saturday nights out and about, I would go insane." With the world of academics as prominent as they are today, the opportunity to have fun can truly make someone's teen years a "special delivery". — Shelley Wheelington, Editor

ACADEMICS

" Academics gives those students who don't excell in other activities such as sports, art and music the chance to do well at something. The academic team gives them an oppotunity to be part of a team, and in doing that add their participation in a team event, and hopefully victory. It's all part of the process of maturation." "First Class"

Quest For Intelligence

With the demand for college degrees stronger these days, students find the race for academic excellence beginning much earlier and becoming a great deal harder to win. Although it has taken a while to evolve, its step into GCHS became more evident this year. Where it was once square to be the smart one in your class, it was accepted by students into high schools, including GCHS, as the new style and to look and appear intelligent was considered "first class". The attempt for this image was seen in everything from change in classes, involvement in academical organizations and even dress. The actions of GCHS students this year set out to prove that the time of dumb blondes was out and the quest for intelligence had arrived at GCHS via "special delivery"

Enhancing Knowledge

(Cont. from page 23) Although enrollment in many of the more fun classes didn't decrease, enrollment for academic classes was up with the fight for acceptance into these classes strong. Senior AP English student Julie Rowland commented, "It was a rather tedious process to get into it, but AP English has helped me a great deal this year in preparation for college. I'm glad I decided to go for it." Other classes that students found themselves penciling in on their enrollment cards included Physics, Chemistry, Trigonometry, Calculus and Advanced Language courses. Of course, with classes like these, less students were found wandering the halls and more in class paying attention.

Mrs. Reed found the academic team booming this year with an increase of players competing in various events ranging from quick recall to individual tests to english composition competitions. There were also students that participated with the academic team on a part-time basis when other activities would allow them. The National Honor Society was also an academic organization that GCHS students spent a great deal trying to get into. Seeing that the eligibility guidlines exceeded the amount of those accepted, it was truly a great honor for those accepted. The clubs to enhance students' knowledge hardly ended here, they also included others such as A-Team, French Club and Spanish Club.(Cont. on page 27)

Upgrading Our School

(Cont. from page 24) Soph. David Hillner commented, "Grant County's variance of academic organizations has really increased this year. It seems they are making a great effort to advance the students' academical abilities. I'm sure this will come back and assist with upgrading of our school in the future."

Even fashion reflected the quest for an intelligent and sophisicated appearance this year. Those people who have always endured remarks such as "four eyes" had it made when the style of glasses came in this year. As one went to the mall, they saw glasses out on the racks that instead of having corrective lenses in them, had clear glass lenses. An employee of Grant County's new "His and Her Closet", as well as a GCHS senior, Shawn Dra O'Neil stated, "It has changed.(Cont. on page 28)

Academic Excellence

(Cont. from page 27) Those people who used to be considered 'doomed' by the impairment of glasses are now considered lucky. A nice, sophisticated-looking pair of glasses are the fashion. Other than the fact it makes the struggle that many went through the past few years to get contacts almost a waste, I like it. It shows people the era of 'cute, dumb chicks' has been replaced by the era of 'cute, smart chicks.''

Grant County High School has done quite a bit to encourage this idea of academic excellence. With the assistance of the teaching faculty, Mrs. Brill and Mr. Cooper spent great amounts of time trying to aide students with their academic hang-ups or stand-outs. While the seniors spent hours competing for those big, and small, scholarship spots, the juniors tooks hours preparing for the many (actually too many) standardized tests that they would have to take and conquer to get in a good spot for the following year. These tests include ASVAB, PSAT, SAT, ACT and even KEST Acheivement Tests. When asked how she felt being bombarded with all these tests, Jr. Tracy Conrad replied, ''It can sometimes get to you. It seems almost all we do during our extra time is take tests, but they are necessary. They'll be very helpful to me in the future and I'm glad that I've gotten the opportunity to experience them at Grant County High.'' (Cont. on Page 31)

Settling Down

Preparation For Years Ahead

(Cont. from page 28) It didn't end here. Freshmen struggled to adjust to their advancement and learned to accept more difficult work, while the sophomores settled down to a more relaxing year with their main priority to rest their brains and prepare for the trying two years ahead of them. Soph. Myron Miller stated, "It has been easier this year. It's not because the classes are easier than last year, but because we are more used to it now. Also, we need some time to relax with what we have coming up next year and our Senior year."

With the students' desire of academic excellence as high as it was and the fact that the pursuit will rise in the future, it goes to show that academically 1988 was truly a "first class" year for GCHS.-Shelley Wheelington, Editor

Dolly West
1948-1988

We here at Grant County High School mourn the loss of well-loved business teacher, Dolly West, who devoted 13 years of her knowledge to the Grant County School System. Mrs. West passed away this year after a long illness.

24 Hour/ Day Job

While dragging yourself out of bed and into the shower in hopes of finally prying your eyes open, have you ever wondered what person associated with Grant County Schools is the first to awake? The question is easy to answer, O.V. Jones, Superintendent of Grant County Schools.

As Superintendent, Mr. Jones finds himself facing the responsibility of running every aspect of all six schools, including many out of classroom problems, such as transportation, food services and administration, yet it hardly ends here. Mr. Jones' hours extend past normal as he strives to make Grant County's School System "first class" and works to deliver it to the citizens "first class" .

When five o'clock rolls around, the day is only beginning for Mr. Jones. He is often expected at most extra-curricular events and can usually be seen routing Grant County on. He also spends much time at home writing speeches for various events that he has been chosen to speak for. It is sure easy for everyone to see that a job as Superintendent of Grant County Schools is a twenty-four hour per day job. — Shelley Wheelington, Editor

As the second Monday of every month rolls around, one can expect to find the board office roaring with ideas to improve Grant County Schools as the board of education hold its monthly meeting. During the course of this meeting, Grant County Board of Education and Central Office Staff meet with the people of the county and discuss what can be done to make our schools the best they can be. Among the things on their list are: curriculum changes, staff upkeeping, material maintenance and other all around improvements to keep our kids on top. With hours of dedication, this group of elite people have proved their strife for the county's excellence through the youth's success. — Shelley Wheelington, Editor

In Charge of it All

When viewing a high school, most never consider the time and devotion that it takes to run a school of 800 students smoothly.. Although it can be very stressful, as Principal and Vice-Principal of GCHS, Mr. Brill and Mr. Wynn have centered the majority of their life around school activities. You can always count on seeing the face of either Mr. Brill or Mr. Wynn at any school activity. "I don't mind extra hours if they're really needed," commented Mr. Wynn, "but I'm not always in favor of sacrificing the time I need to spend with my family."

Other than the ever-posing task of dealing with discipline, they find themselves working with student attendance, teacher attendance/substitute, textbooks, teacher evaluations and everything else that has to do with GCHS. As many of the community attempt to evolve Grant County High School from an ordinary school to a forum of knowledge, John Brill and Gene Wynn are the men in charge of it all. — Shelley Wheelington, Editor

Keeping Fare On Affairs

As guidance counselors of GCHS, Mrs. Brill and Mr. Cooper have the responsibilty of dealing entirely with student affairs, including working with students experiencing life's problems and helping them adjust to high school. As counselor of the freshmen and sophomores, Mr. Cooper finds himself assisting underclassmen with adjustment from middle school to high school. Heading the juniors and seniors in the right direction is the task Mrs. Brill faces as she finds herself preparing them for college in every way, even taking students for tours of colleges to give them a taste of the future.

Jumbled = Faculty

The way to describe how the school year of 1987-88 started out for the faculty can be summed up by one word — jumbled. As the year began to truly get into progress, the faculty experienced some unexpected changes in staffing that wound up confusing to all. Those new teachers joining at the beginning of the year were: Stephanie Wheat, Speech Therapist; Diane Thornton, Sophomre English Teacher; (Continued on page 71)

Adding New Spice

(Continued from page 70) Roger Bingham, Wood Shop teacher; and Betty Jo Walters, General Business/Advanced P.E. instructor. Not only did this take a great deal off the other teachers, but it added a new spice to the main course of educational-instruction feast that has fed GCHS for several years. When asked how she felt about Grant County High, Betty Jo Walters commented, "I enjoy teaching at GCHS. My co-workers are among the best in the state and it's truly a pleasure to work with each and everyone of them.

Yet as the school year began to age, it's fluency began to crumble as Junior English/Drama Teacher, Diane Curtis left in March for a maternity leave, with Senior English Teacher, Carl Webster applying for retirement a week after for health reasons. These events turned out to be a great upset for everyone. Student, Deshay Smith stated, "It was horrible having to watch Mr. Webster and Ms. Curtis leave, they are my favorite teachers. I can understand why, though, It was for their best. After all, look at the tremendous gift Ms. Curtis got, a baby girl." (Continued on page 72)

Rally for Future

(Continued from page 72) revisions that would affect the source of our youth's knowledge. Commented Brenda Spillman, "It isn't right that he wishes to come in and changed so many things that people have worked so hard for so many years to make possible," as Jeff Martin added, "It's nice to see everyone unite for such an honorable cause. It goes to show you that teamwork can conquer anything." Teamwork definitely described our educators as they went to devote an entire day fighting for a goal that would help improve education in the future. The students didn't seem to mind the extra day off a great deal either, although they did have to make it up. Stated Frosh, Keisha Whitaker, "It was pretty nice for the board to let us out of school. It meant a great deal to the teachers."

As the school day closes, there's one factor that the students don't think about, our teacher's jobs don't end when the 3:05 bell rings, their duties extend outside the classroom. Many teachers find themselves coaching one of the many sports teams, sponsoring a club or even taking extra time tutoring a student who is having trouble in one of their classes. When the bus pulls in and most ball players or band members are able to leave, their teacher/sponsor is left behind until the last car is gone to lock up, only to go home to piled up tests and homework to grade. Yet at GCHS there is no surprize of the devotion, it had become part of our educator's tradition of striving to send GCHS graduates into the world to conquer it. — Shelley Wheelington, Editor

Taking Care of Business

Behind the operation of any good school is piles of paperwork, and it is no different at GCHS. Here, the three ladies have the burden of keeping all the paper end of administration are Beth Conrad, Jo Ellen Whitaker and Cindy Angell, who arrived after the departure of Mrs. Linn. Often one wonders if instead of the term secretary, these ladies should have the title "director of people relations". Not only do they face hours of tiny letters on pages, glowing figures on calculators, awaiting keys on typewriters and never-ending telephone rings, but all incoming traffic is relayed to these people. Yet they manage to handle these interruptions with a smile and a friendly aide in direction. Without our secretaries around to take care of business, GCHS would be near impossible to run. — Shelley Wheelington, Editor

Cleanliness' Ambassadors

The janitors here at GCHS have a very messy and difficult job. Having to clean up after the students and other faculty members can often be incredibly disgusting. Janitors devote much of their time here at the high school trying to make the building look "first class" . They spend time here during and after school working their fingers to the bone. Can you imagine cleaning the gym after a ballgame? Our janitors work to make the time everyone spends at GCHS bearable by making it as clean as possible. So, next time you consider making a mess, think of GCHS's ambassadors of cleanliness and their "special delivery" of cleanliness to GCHS. — Tricia Fornash & Lisa Bennett

Making It Tasteful

As the tantalizing aroma of noontime's delight tip-toes its way up the cafeteria steps, everyone awaits fourth period when they can satisfy their ravenous stomachs by indulging in some of the delicious school food. Taking care of assuring that there will be this treat to look forward to daily are ten heroic women who devote their mornings to slaving over hot ovens, steamy dishwashers and frigid freezers, knowing that their payment will be shown in the mere smile of a divulging student.

As these ladies can assure it isn't easy cooking for an entire school. Have you ever cooked dinner at home for your family of four? Well, it isn't much different, except you need to multiply your rations by two-hundred and face the fact that more than likely, there will be people among the eight-hundred that don't exactly agree with the menu. In an attempt to take care of this problem, a potato bar was added to GCHS's menu to give the students the choice of the normally planned dish, an alternate dish, the salad bar or the new potato bar. Students welcomed this enthusiastically with cheers of applause. Commented Freshman Tracy Jones, "It's great to have more choices. I love potatos and it's good to have the chance to choose them. It makes it better that they include rolls or some other type bread with it."

As the bell for fifth period rings, the remnants are left behind to leave proof to GCHS that these ladies are a truly admirably at their job. Among every piece laying on the floor is not only the source of an additional two hours job for the ladies, but a very evident thanks as well. — Shelley Wheelington, Editor

Expense of Being a Freshman

As the doors of Grant County High School creaked open a couple weeks late, the Freshmen found themselves vaguely familiar with the surroundings from memories left from their orienation which had been held in the evening during the previous weeks. Stated Frosh. Steve Cox, "Although I had been here at orientation and had seen the high school then, I still didn't remember where anything was. I knew the gym area from ballgames, but that was it." This remained true with most the freshmen, which is to be expected, but it was also the source of some very mean tricks at the freshmen's expense. "One the big things for the joking upperclassmen"

Angel Crouch, "After being sent to the wrong places many times and being tardy for almost every class, we finally learned not to ask anyone who looked like an upperclassman and counted on the teachers." Not only was unfamiliarity against the freshmen, but they realized that this was a great deal different from the middle school when it came to work.

The freshmen found themselves facing more difficult work, but they also found themselves facing greater multitudes of work to do. Stated Frosh. Renee Damron, "I knew the work was going to be harder, but I never expected there to be so (Continued on Page 82)

GCHS students became accoustomed to seeing many sleepy-eyed freshmen stumbled in nights after ballgames where they had stayed up doing their homework. After bieng stopped in the hall the morning after the always famous Williamstown-Grant County game, Frosh. David Beach commented, "I stayed up very late doing homework last night. I'm not used to it at all. We've never had to stay up late before to do homework unless it was to make a term paper deadline." (Continued on Page 83)

(Continued from Page 82) Not only were the freshmen's new experiences bad, but there were also good things. "Just being able to say you're a high school student overshadows anything negative about the newness," commented Frosh. Debbie Bunch. "The best part about it is being able to scream your graduating year after the 'Hey, hey, ho, ho' cheer at the games," added Frosh. Tracey Jones. These little things and many others helped the freshmen to forget all the bad things that the upperclassmen had done to them. As the maturation process set in and their freshman year flew by, the freshmen tolerated the teasing and gathered memories, waiting for the time to come when they would be the ones playing the tricks. — Shelley Wheelington, Editor

Thoughts

As the Sophmore class of 1987-1988 charged through the doors of Grant County High School they felt a sence of accomplishment. They had now became "Upperclassman." No longer were they at the bottom of their ladder,they were steadily climbing toward graduation. When asked about graduation Soph. Pepper Colson exclaimed "Graduation is going to be one of the best nights of my life." One distressed sophmore said "I can barely make it, two more years will be pure murder!" Although this class expresses their wild side at times, there is a great deal of concentration on their academic achievements. Jennifer Covington explained it quite simply."I want to get the best possible education I can, because I want a successful career and to be very wealthy." (Cont. on page 88)

A Sweet Deal

Once again this year as January rolled around, the time for the sophomore candy sale came about. The halls became bombarded peo- ple with plastic white sacks full of goodies. One could not walk down the hall without seeing a purchase. Senior, Teri Taylor stated, "It's almost like one would expect a drug deal to be like. The sophomores are the dealers, and all those who purchase it try to hide that they are eating it in class, which is forbidden by many teachers." this organization is hardly like those always being chased by the law, it's purpose is to be a benefit to GCHS and help with next year's Jr.-Sr. Prom. Though many cursed the tasty little candies while they were here, after the sale was final there were still many left questioning "Are you still selling M&Ms?" — Shelley Wheelington, Editor

Time to Live

As the year started out, the junior class found themselves experiencing the first year of being a true upperclassman. Practical jokes to be played on the freshmen were now fair game, and it was the time for them to start "truly living". It was now time for those opportunities that always passed them up, to stop for the juniors and allow them to jump aboard the "we're almost seniors" bandwagon. It was time for the juniors to experience their first "first class" year at Grant Coutny High School.

Over the summer, most of the class turned Sweet Sixteen and were able to get their license, leaving only a few of their classmates still dangling between what high school students consider "adolescence" (Continued on Page 95) ontinued from Page 95) themselves for the beloved tests that em to suddenly appear from nowhere on one's Junior year. nong these college prepatory tests are the PSAT, SAT, ACT and SVAB. "The competetion has become so difficult you have to ke them seriously," stated Jr. John Jump whom must have ken the tests very seriously, especially since he was the first CHS student to score a perfect 36 on the Math section of the CT. With all the preaprations, the junior class brought these ores up this year and showed that they studied as well as they rtied.

As the year continued, the juniors continued to prepare emselves for their senior year when the "special de-very" of maturation would occur. Yet they continued their udies proving to all they can achieve both and will fly into next ear's seniorhood with colors. — Shelley Wheelington, Editor

A Student of Note

As one walks down the bandroom hall, the melodic sound of a nightingale chirps from under the door reading "315". Everyone is well aware who is creating this, GCHS's musical ambassador, Deshay Smith. Deshay has been playing the flute for 6 years. "Since I began a year later than everyone else, I started taking private lessons. Once I had caught up, I never stopped taking them and that progressed me to the point I am at now," commented Smith. Deshay has been the 1st chair flute/piccilo for the high school band since her freshman year, which, due to upperclassmen, is near impossible to accomplish.

Although Deshay is a high acheiver at GCHS, her culminations spread from district achievements on to state achievements. Among these are acceptances in Asbury All-Star Band Clinic for 3 years, Morehead Band Clinic for 3 years, Northern Kentucky Select Band for 3 years and even Kentucky All State Band for 2 years. During these past four years, Smith has also earned 17 Solo and Ensemble medals. She has now redirected her talents beyond performance to teaching, where she is a flute instructor at Northern Kentucky's leading music store, Wert.

After graduation, Deshay plans to attend Eastern Kentucky University and major in music "Music means everything to me. It's something everyone is exposed to their entire life. It has positively encouraged many people's lives and I like the idea of being part of that." — Shelley Wheelington, Editor

Anchors Away, My Boy

"Anchors Away" has been a familiar term this past year for a certain GCHS Senior, Chris Camacho since his nomination and acceptance to the Naval Academy this past fall. Chris' many years of devotion to his academic pursuit include numerous events that place him on the top. Included in his academic acheivements are: 3 years on the academic team, 1 as captain; participation in the Boys' State Program; participation in the Governor's Scholar Program; Vice-Presidentship in the National Honor Society; advancing to the Finals of Century III Scholarship Competition; and even an near perfect score of 30 on the ACT.

Not only has Chris shown devotion in academics, but he has also acheived highly in sports as well. His membership in the Letterperson's Club was earned from running Cross Country 6 years, playing Golf for 5 years and managing the Girls' Basketball Team multiple years. Chris was also named to the Cross Country Regional Championship team. During this all, Camacho also managed to attain Perfect Attendance.

When asked how he felt about graduation being so near, Valedictorian C macho commented, "The time has co when we must break the bonds of chil hood and become adults." After gra uation Chris will attend the Naval Aca emy in Annapolis where he will major Aerospace Engineering and represent t name Grant County High School as spe tacularly as he always has. — Shell Wheelington, Editor

Excellent at Excelling

During one's high school years, there is often a great struggle to excell in anything, much less in a great deal of activities. Yet Senior Mary Lee Chance has managed to become a professional at excelling these past four years. Mary Lee's pursuit of success began with her enrollment in advanced classes and involvement in extra-curricular activities such as GCHS Color Guard and Student Council. As the years progressed Mary Lee expanded this involvement to sports such as 3 years of Track and 2 years of Cross Country, resulting in membership in the Letterpersons.

Mary Lee has also shown a great deal of leadership during her high school career through her President and Vice-Presidentships of: Junior Class, Senior Class, SADD for 2 years and A-Team, which led to her representation at the Hugh O'Brian Leadership Seminar. Despite many difficult days, Mary Lee has managed to have perfect attendance in high school. As well as being chosen for Hugh O'Brian, Mary Lee was also chosen for National Honor Society, Governor's Scholar Program, Youth Performance Award and shares one of the Valedictorio positions with a perfect 4.0 GPA.

Mary Lee hopes to attend Transylvani University in Lexington after graduatio When asked to sum up her final feelin of GCHS, Mary Lee commented, "I Can believe how quickly high school went b There are many things that I will mis but I am really excited about the future. — Shelley Wheelington, Editor

Launching Victory

The clock ticks down the final seconds as the net sweeps to the right with the final basket of the game, pushing Grant County to a one point victory, 41-40, and the Championship of the Girls' 32nd District Tournament 1988. The hands that launched this shot belong to Jeanna Wagner and are well known in Kentucky High School Basketball. Jeanna has played for Varsity for 4 years and earned her position in the Letterpersons by her sophomore year. Her devotion to basketball has earned her many positions on honor squads, like: All Carroll Co. Invit. Tournament Team; All Gallatin County Invit. Tournament Team; All Deming Invit. Tournament Team; All 32nd District Tournament Team, for 3 years; and All 8th Region Tournament Team, for 2 years. Not only has basketball been a large part of Jeanna's life, she has played on the softball team for 2 years

Jeanna has managed to keep her academic priorities straight, conquering a membership in the National Honor Society. Jeanna has also involved herself in many other school organizations, such as: Newspaper, Math Club, SADD, Student Council, and Senior Class Sgt. at Arm

Is It Only Skin Deep?

"Beauty is only skin deep" is a saying that Traci Unkraut has never heard much of. Although Traci is an extremely sweet and beautiful person inside, her exquisite beauty outside has managed to conquer dreams for her that most girls only dream of.

The reign of Traci began this past July when she conquered the title of Miss Grant County Fair 1987. "I just entered mainly for the experience and to build up courage. I never expected to win, but I'm glad I did." Since this, Traci has competed in the Miss Kentucky County Fair, and scored very high. Traci is also a Miss Kentucky USA Finalist.

Athleticism has been a large part of Traci's life, not only promoting enjoyment but physical maintenance. Traci's middle school cheerleading carried on over when she started out by making the freshman cheerleading squad. By her sophomore year she had made Varsity and earned position on the Letterpersons, which she has now participated in for two years.
After graduation, Traci plans to go to Brazil for a 13th year of high school for six months, in a program associated with that inr which she went to a Summer Exchange program last year. Upon her return, she plans to attend Murray State University to major in International Studies. When asked what the most important lesson she learned this past year, Traci states, "If you want to do something, go for it. Don't be afraid to try anything. If you don't try, how can you succeed?" — Shelley Wheelington, Editor

Just Friendly Competition

As the day ends, and most are on their way home, festivities in the gym are just beginning and, more than likely, seniors Scott Simpson and Cary Depew are involved with those. During their four years of high school, these guys have dedicated themselves to hours of sweat and pain to represent their school in the name of friendly competition using sports as their medium.

Other than Varsity basketball, they are also involved with baseball team. Scott starts basketball at either guard or forward and covers left field for baseball; while Cary plays forward and hunches awaitingly at the position of catcher. Both have been members of these teams for four years, and Letterpersons for two years, where Scott has conquered the name of President and Cary that of Vice-President.

Murray opens the door to Cary's future where he will major in Art/Business Management, and hopefully maintain a position on the baseball team. Commented Cary, "I hope that during high school I have returned some of the kindness and friendship that the people I've met these past four years have shown me." Sco hasn't definitely decided on the colleg where he will go, but says it will hopefull be a junior college in Kentucky or Florid where he can play baseball. Stated Scot "I'm an active person and through m athletic inclination I have found a source maturation that has enabled me to ex cell." — Shelley Wheelington, Editor

Picassos of GCHS

If you see anyone roaming the halls, reeking of paint, scaly with clay and grimy with lead marks, it's apparent that they are one of the Picassos of GCHS, as is the group of young men consisting of: Jimmy Smith, Scott Pence, David Schmidt and Jack Beckner. Jimmy, who is also a musician, stated, "The main reason I like art is because, like music, you can express your innermost soul." For many years, they have made a time consuming task their hobby in hopes of sculpting their futures and being a remaining name many centuries from now.

When it comes to veterancy, Jimmy reigns with the statistic of 5 years of art, while Scott and David follow closely with 4, and Jack slates up 3 years. But the number of years don't make the artist. Jack has the great honor of designing the 1988 Grantonian cover, while the other guys have the presitige of having some of their artwork bought by customers. "It's a great feeling to have someone ask you if a certain piece of your work is for sale," commented David.

These guys have highgoals for their future. Scott and Jimmy hope to go directly into business with their own studio, specializing in pottery. The other two, David and Jack, plan to go on to college. David plans on attending Eastern Kentucky University to major in Graphic Arts/Design, while Jack hopes to go to The Cleveland Institute of Art. Why did these guys choose art? According to Scott, "You can create your own world from your imagination." — Shelley Wheelington

Homecoming '88 was a great success! Jr. Kathy Kells commented, "Even though we lost the game, the dance afterwards was a blast." It was a good time enjoyed by all who attended.

The voting process was done by homerooms, where in each homeroom a girl was nominated. Then, the ballots were sent around with each nominee on them and as freshmen and sophomores voted for Princess, it was up to the juniors and seniors to battle it out for Queen. Prior to the Varsity game the candidates lined the floor as they nervously waited for the decision, knowing only two could be in the spotlight. Donnie Martin announced the Princess, and Bridget Smith, escorted by Chris Smith, stepped forward. Bridget commented, "It was an honorable experience that I'll always remember, thanks to all my friends." Dara Crase, escorted by Steve Pelfrey, ascended from last year's Princess to this year's Queen.

Even though the Oldham County Colonel were victorious over the Braves 64-48, the evening was able to shine as everyone had an excellent time at the Letterperson's sponsored dance afterwards in the gym.

As girls looked into the mirror, many making sure everything was perfect; guys straightened their bow ties and polished their shoes for the enchanting evening ahead. It was time for the 1987-88 Junior — Senior Prom. The air was filled excitement as some re-lived some pasted proms, and other experienced it for the first time. Approximately three hundred and fourteen people attended the prom, held May seventh at the Marriot Inn, Griffin Gate Resort, Lexington, Ky.

The evening consisted of dining, dancing, and the crowning of royalty. Jr. Mark Cummins, and Jr. Angela Bingham were crowned Prince and Princess. Along with Sr. Scott Simpson and Mary Lee Chance, who were crowned King and Queen. After being crowned, the royalty started off the next dance by dancing to the prom theme song, "The Time Of My Life".

While many danced the night away, others enjoyed quiet conversation with their friends and escorts about the enjoyable evening and their after prom plans.

Prom nights come and go year after year. To many people its just a fancy night out, where the boys dress up in a tux, and the girls wear their beautiful formal dresses. Prom is getting dressed up and looking your best, its like looking into a room of princess's and princes. But prom is also a special night given by the Juniors to the Seniors. It is a time for friends to spend a special evening together and for some Seniors, their last chance to be with their Junior friends. The 1987-88 Prom, was and will always be a precious moment in our lives.

He fell in love with a girl named Jill Tanner who also fell in love with him, but was afraid to show it, because of Ralph, her hippie friend, who didn't like Don because of his handicap.

SPORTS

The 1987-88 Baseball team didn't have as good of a season as they had hoped for. Ron Kinman and Todd O'Neil, two varsity players, said that the season was a little disapointing and they feel that they should have won more games than they did.

The Baseball team did something very interesting this year. They went to a camp in Florida where they learned some different skills and also where they had a nice vacation. All in all the trip went very well. Their record wasn't very "HOT" but the weather was! They only won one game, but they said it helped them play better in their regular season games.

Their season did have a positive side. They won the Carroll Co. Invitational, on the other hand they lost to Walton by a run in the districts.

The team said they have high hopes of a better season next year, and with this outlook, everyone feels they will.

MAKING THE MOST OF IT !!

This years golf season started out to be a very degrading experience for the players. Their first game was devestating. The mighty Braves take their toll against the Owen Co. Rebels. Even though the first game of the season didn't make their futures look very bright, they kept trying with that Brave Spirit.

Craig Martin quotes " Even though we did have a losing season it was fun, I think everyone had a good time."

During the regionals at Pendleton Co. the Braves hopes for state were finally shattered and the dream was lost, but not forgotten.

The star players of the golf team were Steve Combs and Chris Camacho, both Seniors at GCHS. Steve Combs fell a couple strokes behind, missing out on his opportunity in making state. — Pepper Colson and Stacey Mingua

RUNNING TOWARD VICTORIES

"The Cross Country season of 1987-88 started out well," stated Coach Greg Woods. Cross Country is more than a sport, it's a demanding challenge to be the very best. This one-of-a-kind sport requires time, effort and much sweat to meet the physical demands. It always seems our runners are always going the extra mile to bring GCHS the "special delivery" of victory by giving one-hundred percent.

Quoted Woods, " They have worked hard and improved over this year. They set their goals to what they were trying to accomplish." When asked how the team's future looks, Woods reply was, " The team has many young runners, so they will improve to be as good as our current seniors who will leave us."

On Saturday, September 19, 1987 at the Covington Catholic Invitational, the gloomy weather and wet track of Thomas More did not put a damper on these determined teens. In the AA division, Mike Parker placed 10th, Eddie Olding (Continued on Page 147)

Continuing the Tradition

(Continued from Page 146) placed 7th and Dennis Hisle placed 34th. In the girls AA division, Angie Franks gave an extensive push to come in fourth place. In Boone Woods Invitational, September 26, 1987, AAA division, Mike Parker placed 3rd and Eddie Olding placed 2nd. In the girls AAA division, Angie Franks placed 1st.

In cross country, leadership is a prevailing factor. Eddie Olding, one of the leading boys, stated, "Placing first feels great. It's a real honor to have your name called as the winner." When asked why he and his teammate, Mike Parker, run together as they do, Eddie replied, "I can't really explain why we run like we do. All I can say is we are two people that desire to win." The up-grade cross country team started out the '87 season with a bang, and continued throughout the year with the same energetic actions that turns runners into winners in order to continue the tradition of being "first class"

Braves Capture District Title

As fall neared and basketball time came about, the Braves rushed out to begin their season with a 22 point victory over Gallatin County and raise the hopes of fans who awaited a winning season. Their dreams began to change the second game when the Maysville raided in to ruin their perfect record with 29 point loss, yet the Braves returned with a 5-1 record at the end of their sixth game. It looked like the Braves had finally come up on a year where the guys would get some recognition. They most certainly did, yet not the way Grant County had expected, when Freddy Kreuger took a step into GCHS's dreams to torment everyone with a ten game losing streak that looked impossible for the guys to pull back from. Despite an asserted effort, the Varsity Braves of 88 came back to win only two of the remaining nine regular season games to bring their season record to 7 wins — 18 losses.

As district tournament time approached, the sound of late practices became familiar to GCHS as the hopeful Braves took to the court to prove that it was not over. "We practically ate, drank and slept basketball that week," commented Sr. Scott Simpson. It all proved worth the while as the Braves came back to avenge their earlier losses by scalping the Williamstown Demons 57-47 (Continued on Page 149)

"Special Delivery" of Pride

Despite being rated last of the teams attending the regional games, the Braves charged out at Henry County to win a difficult struggle against Anderson County, 74-65. Two days later, Henry County bleachers were plagued once again with the blue and gold t-shirts and pom-pons as the Braves came face-to-face to battle the Carroll County Panthers. Although the Braves jumped off to an early lead, the Panthers rushed back in to lead the rest of the game and awake GCHS with their first tournament loss. The Braves ended their struggle a mere two games away from the state tournament with two of their players being named among the region's best, those being Ron Kinman and Jeff Stone. In the eyes of Grant Countians, these determined boys were the champions as they brought GCHS a "special delivery" of pride. — Shelley Wheelington, Editor

District Becomes Heartbreak

The GCHS Boys Varisty Cheerleaders year began with cheerleading camp where they learned new jumps, flips and mounts, and most of all where they recollected their sportsmanship and prepared themselves to handle not only the wins, but also the losses, which seemed to be a necessity early on in the year. These girls worked their entire summer dedicating gallons of sweat to make their season "first class" not only for themselves, but the students as well.

When most high school students think of cheerleaders, they think of "snob, preppy, goody-goody and spoiled brat", but when it comes to these girls, all one hears is "hard-work, sweat, stress, sprained ankles and tons of spirit." Our cheerleaders proved this to be true, as they received 2nd place in District competition. Due to an error in judging scores, the squad had been led to believe they'd won and were later informed that they had placed 2nd. There were a great deal of hard feelings about this. Commented Jr. Michelle Rowland, "It wouldn't have been so bad if we wouldn't have already gotten the trophey. Actually having it removed from your hands is a total heartbreak." But these determined girls stormed back in the regional competition to smash the district's (Continued on page 151)

Step 1 of Double Dream

Squaws Capture District Title

There was no way to tell that this would be the year of the Squaw ruling the 32nd District when the season started with a 9 point loss to Trimble County, followed by another, lessened, but still hard to swallow 5 point loss to Western Hills. Yet the Squaws were out to prove that they could put up a fight as they entered a win-lose volley of games with a win against Pendleton County which lead them to a 4 win — 7 loss record at the end of their 11th game. Commented Sr. Tammy Webster, "At that time things were looking pretty dim. The Braves were also at a low point there and everyone had just taken for granted that it wasn't going to be a good season for either team." Until the Squaws came out with their fight to prove they could be tops and started a 7 game winning streak that began with a win over the Williamstown Demonettes, 68 — 55, and made a full circle back around to a second defeat over Williamstown, 46 — 29. District Champs (Cont.)

First Class Double Dream

(Continued from Page 156) With only 3 games of the regular season left, the Squaws put forth every effort, but were unable to win any of the 3, tallying out their regular season record to 11 wins — 10 losses.

As the nervous team entered Owen County High School for the 3nd District Girls Tournament, the team knew that this was their last chance , especially for the seniors. As it came time for the tip-off, the Squaws found themselves once again facing Williamstown and wondering if they could beat the same team a third time in one season. The answer came out a clear, as the scoreboard was left screaming yes, and warning the Scott County Lady Cardinals that they would be facing Grant County at the finals. The Squaws and Cardinal fought it out in a nerve-wrecking battle, to finally put the cap on their dream and make the Squaws advance to regional competition as 32nd district champs with Sr. Jeanna Wagner and Jr. Kristi Jones being named to the all district team. . Despite an asserted effort, the Squaws fell to Oldham County in the first game of the regionals with Sr. Jeanna Wagner palying well enough to be named to the all region team. The girls were still left with the fact that their hard work, combined with the boys' title, brought "special delivery" the first step of a "first class" double dream for Grant County. — Shelley Wheelington, Editor

Frosh On Their Way

Improvement

The 1987-88 Freshman Boys Basketball Team got off to a slow start, but they were still hard working and determined. The team won two games by mid-season and resolved to have more victories. The successful win against Williamstown added to the pennant record. The Freshman Team steadily improved every game they played. The team was getting stronger defensively and offensively. Each player on the team felt pressure. They had to play their hardest to make the Junior Varsity team next year. Their record did not stop the compliments from other Freshman coaches. The big impression was the comeback the team was making. For instance, Scott County beat the freshman by 35 points the first time they played. All of the players were becoming more confident By the end of the year the improvment was great! The Freshman team proved they were going to be an awesome team by next year! — Jason Nunnely
